To begin with, Comedy is a film genre that represents humour and jokes that make an audience laugh. Comedy shows people often being odd and funny indicants. Characters in this gene are seen as being superior to supporting characters and antagonists.

Surreal comedy is a genre comedy that is very bizarre and defies interpretations of reality. People argue that surreal comedy is seen as: random, nonsense and illogical. Surreal comedy was first created in the 19th century appearing in books like Alice in Wonderland and Alice through the looking glass. Authors such as Lewis Carol and Edward Lear used surreal comedy in their literacy works.

Surreal comedy became even more popular in the 20th century, there was an artistic movement called 'avert grade' the purpose of this movement was to make people aware of Surreal comedy and help establish it even more.

An example, of a famous surreal comedy film is 'Porky in Wacky land'. It was created by Warner bros and is an animated film. The plot of the film shows Porky pig travelling to Africa to hunt a rare dodo bird. The film is known to have a lot of random humour and nonsense. An example from the film is, when Porky lands in Africa, there is a sign says that calls it Wacky land. Porky is then greeted by a comical beast who dances away into a forest. This shows how random surreal comedy can be. Another example is when Porky finally confronts the dodo bird and he does his best to catch it but it plays tricks on him. Later, the dodo bird pulls out a pencil and draws a door in mind air. The dodo bird doesn't go through the door and instead it whacks Porky. Once again, it shows that surreal comedy can be silly and goofy.

This comedy works by creating funny moments that audiences may not expect. In addition, this comedy takes any real life situation that defies it in way that doesn't make sense and at times can be very confusing. Surreal comedy portrays itself this way because the creators of surreal comedy know when to make their target audience laugh at random moments. Creator's also understand that taking normal situations and defying them in a silly way can make the audience laugh as they don't expect to see normal situations portrayed in this art.

Surreal comedy is like the Satire comedy genre in many ways. For example, the Satire comedy creates a lot of sarcasm and irony that is sometimes random and weird. Another example is when Satire defies normal life situations and portrays it in a silly way towards its target audience. However, Satire comedy is different at times; it's also meant to make audiences think about normal situations it defies. It does this because the creators of this genre want their audience to understand their artistic expression and why they choose to express themselves this way.

Overall, Surreal comedy is a genre that makes its audience laugh at random moments and the creators of this genre know how to make their audience laugh by expressing themselves and they want to make the audience understand in this art form.
